WHOLE NUMBER 1707

MYERS TO SPEAK

TIME CHANGED TO 4:30 P.M. SATURDAY, JULY 24

Lt. Gov. Rodes K. Myers will speak at West Liberty Saturday, July 24, at 4:30 p.m., in the interest of his candidacy for governor.

The speaking was previously announced for 8 p.m., but was changed to 4:30 to make possible another speech at Winchester at 8. Please note change of hour; you don't want to miss this important speech here Saturday afternoon at 4:30. (Adv.)

ENDORSE MYERS

Lucasville, O., July 16, 1943 Voters of Morgan county:

We have read the article of Lynn B. Wells, endorsing Hon. Rodes K. Myers, the only soldier running for governor, and we agree with him. No one is more conscientious and capable of speaking for the soldiers than Lynn B. Wells. He works 4 to 6 hours a day filling out their various papers without pay, and even puts his own work aside, doing it at night.

One son, Ira J. Spencer, was the second soldier from Morgan county to die in this war. Cartie Lykins, who lives in the house where we formerly lived, was the first to lose a son.

We would hate to think that people would not have stood by our soldier who had been killed, and we feel that it is the duty of every mother, father, wife, sweetheart, or relative to vote for the soldier candidate, and in this year's election it is Rodes K. Myers.

This letter is from your former neighbors, and was inspired by Lynn B. Wells' letter endorsing the soldier, and we know how sincere he is about this, always loyal to the soldiers and their relatives.

Let's show our colors and remember those that don't. Donaldson was of the right age for service in the other fellow's record as well as mine. Sincerely yours,

WILLIAM (BILLY) SMITH Wrigley, Ky.

FACTS

To the citizens of Morgan county:

In March, 1942, I headed a delegation to Frankfort with C. C. May, J. E. May, Dave Williams, Joe Osborn, and others for the purpose of asking a program for 4 miles on Crockett road, 3 miles on Lacey Creek road, 4 miles on the Grassy Creek - Helechwah road, and 1.8 miles to get the road across Licking river at Woodbend, and J. LYTTER DONALDSON, state highway commissioner, would not even talk to us. We could not even see him, but had to talk to an assistant, who told us that the matter would be placed before Donaldson and we would be advised later. We did not get a written report and I wrote the department and they said that there was nothing they could do for Morgan county.

The same year they agreed to oil the road from West Liberty past Wrigley, and carried on for several months on this promise and never did this, and they have oiled over 1,000 miles of road since in Kentucky, according to the paper reports they make.

You read the large paid ad about what J. Lytter Donaldson stood for in the way of roads, but during the three and one half years he had the full authority to build and resurface roads, Morgan county has received none.

Ren E. Nickell, his campaign manager, is talking about his road program, and as far as Morgan county is concerned I don't see where we would have any chance for road building or surfacing under Donaldson.

Rodes K. Myers has pledged himself to help in a greater sum to the farm to market roads. He has promised to carry out the works of the federal planning commission. There is no question but what Morgan county will fare better under Mr. Myers.

Mr. Myers is the only candidate advocating that the state take over and liquidate the bonds of the counties that voted bonds and gave the money to the state to build roads. Morgan county has $212,500.00. This would be a greater help to Morgan county than any other program that could be carried out.

It has been rumored in Frankfort that a few jobs in Morgan county will keep the people in line voting for the administration candidates year in and year out.

As a citizen of Morgan county, I am suggesting that you take the records of all the candidates for governor, and I am sure that you will vote for the soldier, Hon. Rodes K. Myers. If I did not conscientiously believe that it is to Morgan county's interest to vote for Myers, I would not pay for this advertising. I am Your friend and neighbor,

LYNN B. WELLS, Atty. County Judge of Morgan County

TO CLEAN WATER TANK

The town water tank is due a cleaning Saturday, according to John Turner, plant superintendent.

Saturday was chosen as the day for cleaning to avoid interfering with the cannery. It is not expected that the water will be off altogether, but pressure will be low, and anyone expecting to use much water Saturday had better plan to conserve.

CHOOSE YOUR MAGISTRATE ON HIS RECORD

Vote for William (Billy) Smith, because he served you well. During his tenure in office he was able to get more bridges and roads built than any other justice of the peace. WPA built the road from Pompy to Yocum and on to Zag, and crushed thousands of tons of lime in this district, more than any other district in the county.

William (Billy) Smith made a record equal to any other justice of the peace in Morgan county, and always voted to save the taxpayers money.

Lonnie Smith, as justice of the peace, voted to give away seven bridges in Morgan county, which order was opposed by the county judge.

Lonnie Smith voted to raise the jailer's salary $100.00, and then the next year voted to raise it $300.00 more for sweeping the courthouse. Any taxpayer can sue and recover the raise voted. This was opposed by the county judge.

Lonnie Smith voted for and helped carry Margie Cox as the referral agent, and she was paid for 2 weeks in May and all of June while in Morehead teachers' college, and she was paid by the magistrates for the month of March that she did not work, the office being closed. The county judge opposed this.

Lonnie Smith is a candidate for the purpose of having the county assume the $63,000.00 bond issue voted by the board of education, under a law passed in Kentucky in 1942 authorizing such bonds by the counties. Now you have $212,500.00 in bonds and if the county takes this load you will have a burden you can never pay.

I am running on my record, and want you to vote for me on this record, but it is well to consider the other fellow's record as well as mine. Sincerely yours,

WILLIAM (BILLY) SMITH Wrigley, Ky.

CARPENTER-BOLIN

Frank Bolin and Miss Tressie Carpenter of Woodbend were united in marriage by Rev. Jim Helton July 17, in the presence of Mrs. Carta Carpenter, Cadet Charles Rowland, Lenora and Walter Perry, and Zola Bolin.

The bride is the daughter of J. B. Carpenter. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Coma Bolin.

They were serenaded by a host of friends Saturday night. Home made candy was served and all departed at a late hour wishing the young couple a long and happy life.

Paragon of Virtue

Mother—You good-for-nothing! Why don't you take a pattern from your father?
Son—What has he done?
Mother—Why, he has just got two years off his sentence for good conduct.

For good news read the Courier.

ADAMS

In memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Maggie B. Adams, who departed from this life July 29, 1942:

Darling Mother:
There is a big vacant place in our heart, and it will always remain for you. You have left us to mourn, and we need you in everything we do. But we know that Jesus has loved you, and needed you too. So, Mother dear, we know you are living in peace, and have a golden crown, and at the slightest sound we can hear you calling, and Mother we want to meet you in heaven, where we will never have to depart from Mother again.
(Adv.) Children,
CHARLES AND DELAPHANE

IMPORTANT RATIONING NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that we do not have any more application forms for home canning sugar allotments. We expect these forms to be replenished in the near future. Avoid an unnecessary trip to West Liberty rationing board office to sign up for extra canning sugar until further notice is given thru your local newspaper.

The local war price and rationing board office at West Liberty will be closed every Wednesday after 12, all afternoon. Please do not expect to be admitted, for we will be required to complete work on the inside during these closing hours each week in order to give you better service all the rest of the working hours during each week.

RATION CALENDAR

Blue stamps N, P, and Q good thru August 7.

Red stamps P, Q, R, and S good now and thru July 31.

Coffee stamp 21 expired for consumers July 21. Stamp 22 good from July 22 until further notice.

Sugar stamp 13 good for 5 pounds thru August 15. Stamps 15 and 16 for canning purposes, 5 pounds each, good thru October 31.

Shoe stamp 18 good thru Oct. 31 for 1 pair of shoes.

Gasoline—Coupons No. 7 on new "A" books become valid July 22.

Next inspection of tires due.

"A" book vehicles by Sept. 30.

"B" book vehicles by Oct. 31.

"C" book vehicles by Aug. 31.

Commercial vehicles every 6 months, or 5,000 miles, whichever is first.

RATIONING NOTES

A great many people have the impression that the government has set aside sugar for all families, irrespective of how much fruit they want to can. This is not true.

I quote below a letter from the office of price administration, United States department of agriculture.

"The procedure necessary for consumers to obtain sugar for home canning is materially simplified this year. In a great majority of cases, it will be unnecessary for housewives to visit their local war price and ration boards or to fill out any forms. Only those who require an abnormal quantity of sugar will have to make a special application.

In addition to stamp 13 and 14, stamp 15 and 16 in War Ration Book I became valid on May 24 and may be used for obtaining canning sugar in amounts of 5 pounds on each stamp through Oct. 31, 1943. Thus each individual may secure an extra 10 pounds of sugar for canning without making special applications. This amount of sugar will put up as much fruit as most families will be able to can or intend to use. At the allowed rate of one pound of sugar to four quarts of finished fruit the ten pounds a person is allowed would provide each person with 40 quarts of canned fruit.

"Most families have the use of several ration books, and even where the canning budget includes the making of some jams and jellies, it is estimated that the sugar available to consumers with the use of these two stamps will be adequate.

"In exceptional cases where consumers require more than the ten pounds of canning sugar obtainable with sugar stamps in War Ration Book No. I, application allotments may be made at local ration boards.

"The maximum which will be given any person, however, is a total of 25 pounds, that is 15 pounds in addition to the ten pounds secured by the stamps 15 and 16 in War Ration Book I, of which a maximum of 5 pounds of sugar per person may be used for jams and jellies."

JAS. W. DAVIS, Chief Clerk

MAIL DELIVERY POSSIBLE

Whether or not a small city may have a house to house delivery of its mail depends primarily on the amount of business done by the local post office.

It has lately been announced that the volume of business now being transacted at West Liberty office is well over the amount set as the minimum required for this service.

City mail delivery would add at least one person to the federal pay roll here. So far as known, no definite steps have been taken to inaugurate this service.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Furious Tank Battles Rage in Russia As Nazis Seek to Encircle Red Army; Farm Income Increased by Two Billion; Allied Victories Threaten Jap Bases

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

For meritorious work as commander and military governor of the Territory of Hawaii during the critical period after Pearl Harbor, Lt. Gen. Delos Emmons (extreme right) receives Distinguished Service medal from Secretary of War Henry Stimson (at extreme left). Brig. Gen. H. B. Lewis (center) attended the ceremonies.

RUSSIA: Blitz Again

Seeking to wipe out the big Russian bulge on the central front, 600,000 German soldiers continued their attacks at both ends of the bulge, with the objective of encircling the huge Red army from the rear. At the southern extremity of the bulge near Belgorod, the Reds admitted that the Nazis had scored early gains. According to the Russians, the Germans were backing up their forces with masses of tanks and airplanes. In action was a new tank, bigger than the 60-ton Mark VI.

From dispatches, the battle assumed the old lines of German blitzkrieg. The Nazis concentrated their strength at certain points and then threw their whole weight against them. As their forces streamed through, the Russians moved to pinch off the tanks and infantry and isolate them from the main armies.

Although claiming success, the Germans said that the huge bulge still extended 85 miles to the west.

CONGRESS: Adjourns for Recess

Capping its hectic deliberations with an agreement to give President Roosevelt a free hand in reducing retail food costs through subsidies, the 78th congress recessed for a summer vacation.

The session saw passage of notable legislation. For the first time, taxpayers were put on a current basis with the enactment of pay-as-you-go legislation. Approximately 130 billion dollars was appropriated.

The administration's authority to make lend-lease and reciprocal trade agreements was renewed, and permission was given for use of 2 billion dollars to stabilize foreign currencies.

President Roosevelt's limitation of wartime salaries to $25,000 was repealed. Spurred by the walkout of the nation's coal miners, anti-strike legislation was passed over a presidential veto. Although both houses took favorable action on the Commodity Credit corporation and agricultural department bills, they killed a senate proposal to raise the ceiling on corn to $1.40, and also voted to abolish crop insurance.

PACIFIC ADVANCE: On 700 Mile Front

The languorous islands of the Southwest Pacific know peace no more.

Along a great arc of 700 miles, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's offensive continues to rage, with American troops menacing the Jap air base of Munda in the Solomons, and Allied troops pressing against Salamaua in New Guinea from three sides.

Trapped in the narrow Kula gulf, eight Japanese warships were reported sunk, sent to the bottom by a thunderous broadside from U. S. naval vessels.

By making two landings on New Georgia island, American troops closed in on Munda from the north and east. Finished by the Japs last December, this air base would give Allied fighters and bombers a springboard for attacking the great enemy naval and airplane center of Rabaul, between the Solomons and New Guinea.

Strafed and bombed by Allied airmen, Jap troops gave ground before advancing columns in the area south of Salamaua.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

MAIL ORDERS: Both the big mail order companies, Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck had larger sales in June of this year than in June, 1942.

SHIP BUILDERS: Union officials allegedly representing 1,000,000 shipyard workers have presented the biggest wage adjustment case in the War Labor board's history.

ICE CREAM: Ice cream and candy will be less plentiful this summer because of the shortage of corn syrup and corn sugar, important ingredients.

STRIKE: A walkout of 100 railroad men threatens to halt operations at the Bingham canyon mine of the Utah Copper company, it is reported.

MEAT:

Hog Marketing Heavy

Because of heavy pork production, output of meat has been running fairly even with that of 1942. Record slaughtering of hogs has offset the decline in the butchering of cattle, and, to a considerably smaller extent, of sheep.

According to recent estimates of the War Meat board, hog slaughter rose 26 per cent over last year, and pork production was up 40 per cent.

The severe decline in cattle slaughter and resulting meat products amounted to 40 per cent over last year. Although calf butchering slid 28 per cent, meat output was down about 38 per cent.

Moderate decreases were noted for sheep and lamb slaughter, although meat production showed a sharper drop.

GIRAUD

Welcomed in Capital

While 15,000 residents of Martinique reportedly rioted in support of Gen. Charles DeGaulle, Gen. Henri Giraud was received in Washington by President Roosevelt under circumstances indicating the Allies' public acceptance of his leadership of the French National committee.

According to the Martinique reports, the rioters' actions prompted the administrator of the island to consider severance of relations with Vichy and entrance into the provisional government of the French National committee headed by General Giraud and DeGaulle. The committee already had appointed a military commander over the territory.

General Giraud's stock in Allied circles rose with the U. S. government's announcement that it had uncovered a secret document, showing that General DeGaulle's followers have sworn to perpetuate him in power after the war, contrary to the promise that the French people would be permitted to freely choose their own leaders following the liberation of the nation.

Production Miracle

Sprawling over 1,350 acres of rambling plains near Fontana, Calif., stands the first complete steel mill ever built west of the Rocky mountains—the work of Henry J. Kaiser, the production genius of World War II, the man who can get things done.

Fifteen months ago, 60,000 hogs grubbed over these plains. Today, a long row of white buildings of concrete and steel, with entire sides of windows tinted blue, mark the first great steel mill to be laid out on an assembly line basis. Relieving the monotony are victory gardens planted around the entire site.

Everything in the new mill is moved by 3½ miles of conveyor belt. Ore from Utah and coal from California move to grinders and coke ovens on these conveyors. Two banks of 45 coke ovens each feed a huge 97 foot blast furnace, which resembles a milk bottle. In the fall, a mill for rolling steel plates will be completed to round out the construction, and this building alone will be 1,100 feet long and 300 feet wide.

Built in consultation with the United States, Bethlehem and Republic Steel corporations, the Fontana mill has cost 83 million dollars. The RFC advanced the funds.

SHOPPING NEWS:

Stockings; Salmon

Government agencies moved on two fronts to give good cheer to the women and housewives of America.

War Production board announced that it would permit spinning of 100 denier rayon yarn to assure continued manufacture of full-fashioned hosiery. WPA also allowed an increase of 1½ inches in the length of women's full-fashioned acetate rayon stockings to provide better wear, since this type does not stretch readily.

The price of the half-can size of Alaska Chinook salmon was "rolled back" six cents by the Office of Price administration. Maximum dollars and cents ceilings also were placed on canned Alaska King, Coho, Pink and Puget Sound sockeye salmon.

GREAT BRITAIN:

Taxes High

Speaking before the house of commons, Sir Kingsley Wood, Great Britain's finance minister, revealed that taxes took 40 per cent of all private income in England last year. More than 12 million Britons are on the tax rolls, and of these, 10 million are in the lower brackets.

It was also announced that already the British government has borrowed a sum more than double the size of the national debt before the war began. The debt now approximates 70 billion dollars.

Sir Kingsley said that thus far Great Britain has advanced 780 million dollars to Allied governments, exclusive of lend-lease aid.

SOCIAL HYGIENE:

New Step in Alabama

In an action marking a new step in social hygiene in the United States, Gov. Chauncey Sparks of Alabama signed a bill requiring blood tests for syphilis of every resident in the state between 14 and 50 years of age.

An appropriation not to exceed $75,000 annually will be made under the law, provisions of which call for tests on a county-wide basis under direction of the state health department.

Washington Digest

FDR Must Take Helm Again To Achieve National Unity

Administration, Congress Must Get Tough in Throttling Various Pressure Groups Seeking Advantages for Chosen Few.

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building Washington, D. C.

In the next few weeks decisions will be reached which will affect the length of the war and they will not be made on the military fronts. They will be made in small town offices, leaning across fences, down at the post office or the court house, on front stoops, at the Elks club, in the lodge rooms and after meetings of one kind or another in every middlesex, village and farm in the country.

They will result from conversations between the congressmen, home to mend their 1944 fences, and their constituents. The nation faces a crisis on the home front. Unless it is solved in the common sense American way, it is going to prolong the war months, and perhaps longer. Its presence has already delayed the capitulation of Italy, according to some of the more pessimistic pessimists around Washington.

As success on the battlefield grows, the efforts of those trying to support a total war are being defeated on the home front.

Two Events

Two events mark the low in unified effort for victory. One was when a reporter, with no evil intent in his mind as far as I know (and I know the man), asked the President if he would make any comment for background on the statement that although things were going well on the battlefield, they were not going so well on the administration front (meaning home front). The President replied with a castigation of the press and radio. Some of their representatives, he said, were encouraging governmental friction. He could have given a blasting, rip-roaring answer which would have encouraged the country. As it was, he made some of the men whose job it is to interpret the news to the country, too mad to be objective.

The second event which marked the nadir in shoulder-to-shoulder effort on the home front was when congress came within an eyelash of killing the use of any and all subsidies which would have broken a wide hole in the anti-inflation dam. Let me state immediately that I do not believe that subsidies is the panacea for our inflation ills, but to have wiped them out completely at that time would have meant jerking the one, wobbling support we did have right out from under the price-control structure.

Since then the President has perked up and taken a positive stand and congress on second thought modified its berserk mood and evolved a compromise.

Now it is up to the people. If the congressmen are convinced that they can afford to go national and not be defeated a year from November; if they are convinced that the people will support their votes if they vote for what they think the country needs and not to suit the pressure groups that sit on their desks all day, the crisis will pass.

Crack-Down Necessary

The objectives are pretty clear. In the first place, the President has got to take the helm again. He has got to crack down. He has got to see that dissensions do not break out. He has got to see to it that the secretary of the treasury comes out with a clear-cut tax and savings program which will absorb the inflation dollars. Congress will have to support that program.

The pressure groups whose purpose it is to get their members more money for products or wages, will have to be throttled. This means that the administration has to be tough. Congress will have to have courage. The people will have to support their elected representatives.

The vast majority of Americans are perfectly willing to carry their share of the load. They have not been willing to make sacrifices if they believe someone else is getting the benefit and shirking their share. The farmer will work the skin off his hands and take a meager reward if it's for the good of the country and the boy he spared to join the army. But not if somebody tells him the workman is making all the money at an easy job.

The workman will face higher living costs—and he certainly has to, without a wage raise, until somebody comes along and tells him the farmer is getting rich and that is why his food costs go up. And so on.

The reason why I believe this is because I receive letters like the following:

"My husband is 67 years old—working and making $38.00 a week when tax is taken out. We are buying two war bonds each month—but we have a son in the navy—and one designing aviation tools in a plant in Atlanta. Perhaps he, too, will soon be in the service, though married he has no children—yet."

"We are like many—trying to carry our end of the war effort—but we have many friends and relatives who though making hundreds a month don't buy a bond. These same people went through the depression—with jobs—while we took it the hard way. Our two boys suffered from malnutrition during those years."

"Don't you think this makes a difference in point of view? You see we suffered—making us think. My boys bought war bonds right from the start. Their dad and I feel the need of a decent world to live in, too, for we had to live in a deprived world for several years. It gave us a different slant on life. We want a decent world for our children and grandchildren—and other people's children."

"Selfishness and greed will have to go—if we are to have that decent world."

If a congressman's constituents talk to him that way, we won't have much more trouble on the home front. Hitler will have to begin worrying again.

Diary of a Broadcaster

The Washington atmosphere affects strangers who tarry long within the shadow of the Washington monument or the Capitol dome. It affects not only the so-called higher species but the citizens of cat-and-dogdom as well. Today, I came down town at an odd hour—an interesting hour. I was a little later than usual. The war workers and the boarding-house cats and the alley pups, which wait until the workers are out of the way, had vanished on their various duties; only an indolent and disreputable Tom still paused to massage its hips against a garbage can, and a yellowish part-fox terrier, certainly part, and from his brush, certainly more fox than terrier, lay in the exact center of the alley where anything that ran down the middle gutter would eventually reach him.

These creatures sniff at protocol and treat it as they do anything else they sniff at. But that hour is also the hour of the pet parade, for the handsome creatures that strain at leashes. The most unhappy person meet at this bewitching hour is a thin little relic of a butler, who is literally torn between losing his dignity and his grip on one of the embassy great danes.

No men like to walk dogs. All dogs like to walk men. But one gentleman dog nurse dared me to stare him down. He was being led by a stiff-legged aristocrat, a young wired-haired fox, as white and starched as if his proud mamma prepared him for a birthday party. Then there was the sad-eyed cocker, who dropped its eyes, sadder still when it realized I had noted that its mistress was wearing a far too informal house dress for polite street wear.

And then, there was the little one-by-five, it undulated along with a rather forced smile. It was a dachshund and probably anti-Nazi. It was hustling along like a caterpillar in high gear, trotting with its hind legs, and hopping with its little turtle-paws in front.

I even met a feline on a leash, a great big tortoiseshell Thomas—it looked as if it was safer that way for the rest of us—all I could think of was "tiger, tiger, burning bright in the jungle of the night."

BRIEFS . . . by Baukhage

The American soldier's average coffee ration is 40 cups of coffee a month.

The Army Service Forces is the largest employer of women in the United States today, with a total of 379,300, or approximately 38 per cent of the more than 1,000,000 civilian workers employed in ordnance plants, depots, etc.

The German occupation forces have "ceased quarrying" for large stone blocks in the southern province of Vestfold, the Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet said in an article reported to the OWI. The Germans had intended using the stone for victory monuments, the article said. Waste labor obviously will not be countenanced.

SMOKES and the SOLDIER

Is it true that a soldier is always hungry?

Yes—up to a point. But the Quartermaster Department has found that some soldiers, particularly new recruits, actually don't eat enough.

The Army mess table is exactly like a football team's training table. The food served there is carefully planned to aid in the physical development of the soldier. And the Army has discovered certain little ways to increase Johnny Doughboy's appetite. The Army has found it can add to a soldier's enjoyment of his food—and therefore increase his consumption of all those carefully prepared vitamins, minerals, and proteins—if he is allowed to smoke during meals. Measured tests run by the Quartermaster Department show that food consumption actually increased by 5% when soldiers were permitted to smoke cigarettes at the mess table.

"Smokes," of course, play a prominent part in many phases of the life of a soldier. Whenever you see a news photo of soldiers at ease, you're apt to see them enjoying a cigarette. Particularly among American troops overseas, cigarettes—real American cigarettes—are highly prized and almost never present in sufficient quantities.

What kind of cigarettes do Uncle Sam's fighting men prefer? Well, records show that the favorite cigarette is Camel. That is true not only with men in the Army, but with Sailors, Marines, and Coast Guardsmen as well. Sales records from the Service Stores, Ship's Stores, and Canteens—show that Camels are first with men in all branches of the service.

Further proof that Uncle Sam's fighting men like their smokes is given in the service man's preference in gifts from home—it's a carton of his favorite brand of cigarettes. Tobacco dealers, recognizing that Camels are the favorite among service men, are equipped to help you in properly wrapping, addressing, and stamping your gift of Camels to the man in the service—Adv.

Gallant Is the Word

A pendant to the historic cloak incident of Queen Elizabeth and Sir Walter Raleigh is surely supplied in this story, told by Arthur Croxton, many years manager of the London Coliseum music hall (in his reminiscences).

The courtly mayor of a small town in the Midlands of England had the honor of dancing, at some public ceremonial, with Queen Alexandra—then princess of Wales. She smilingly warned him that she had just had measles in her household, and that she hoped that she would not give him the disease. Bowing low, the mayor answered, "Your royal highness, I should be happy to take anything from so charming a source."

FOOD CONSERVATION
...AND CONVERSATION—
THE MOST POPULAR SUBJECT
of conversation is food. Everybody talks about it either from the viewpoint of the producer, the processor
and dealer or the consumer. There is no more agreement among the general public than is found between the nine separate and distinct bureaus, departments or administrations that are attempting to direct the production and distribution of food.

It is my belief that the one man
who knows more of the need, production and distribution of food than any other is Herbert Hoover. From him I learn that the scarcity program took 47 million acres of American farm land out of production in an effort to raise farm prices. Of that acreage only nine million has again been put under cultivation,
leaving 38 million still idle. That is more than an acre of tillable
ground for every family in the nation. More ground per family than is used to support many a European family. When the war in Europe is over we must feed the starving people of the nations Hitler has despoiled. That 38 million acres
would feed all the people of Norway,
of Holland, or of Belgium, and we will be called upon to feed those people if there is to be a real peace.

There are too many cooks at the food pot. The edicts and decrees
from nine independent bureaus, each
of them staffed by a group of theoretical economists, all of them issuing instructions, and regulations,
many of them not easily interpretable
and many of them contradictory
has made for confusion. Congress has not been able to find out what it is all about. Three different congressional committees are investigating the food problem as presented by these nine bureaus.

These nine bureaus or departments are employing 120,000 people,
while in World War I the employees of the food administration and the department of agriculture combined numbered only 23,000. The effort to keep that 120,000 employees busy is keeping the American people in a state of confusion on the food question, but it is not providing any answer to the problem. We are actually exporting less food than we did
during World War I.

LOYAL FARM BOYS
MAKE SACRIFICE TOO
ANY ACQUAINTANCE of many years has a farm of 320 acres of the best of midwestern soil. He has passed the three score of years
point, and is far from physically strong. He has four sons, one married, and three others who have in the past operated the farm. The married son is a captain of infantry
in Africa. The third son is in an army training camp, the fourth,
a boy of 20, is in the marines in the South Pacific. The second son, 24 years of age, is alone operating that 320 acre first-essential warplant, the farm. I know that young man. I know there is no small particle of the coward or the slacker in his mental or physical system. His father asked for his deferment, and he accepted the obligation with a full realization of what it means to him now and will mean throughout his lifetime. He, too, would like the acclaim of friends and associates
that wearing a uniform would bring.
I know how he wishes for the privilege of following his brothers. To me he is displaying the greater heroism of any of the four. He is making the greater sacrifice. There should be a way of acknowledging
such sacrifice, and there are many thousands of similar situations.

WHEN THE WAR ENDS, it is estimated we will have some 56 million people wanting jobs. That is 10 million more than had jobs in 1940. The need of peace time commodities will take care of the 56
million needed jobs provided the government gives industry an opportunity to accumulate sufficient capital to supply the needed tools. If the government must do the financing it will mean the government in business and our free enterprise system will be gone. That is not an impossibility, but it is not what our soldiers want to find when they come home. It would mean the end of individual opportunity.

A FEW YEARS AGO John H. Perry told me it cost 25 cents for each pea produced in the garden of his home in a New York suburb. Today
the Victory gardener does not figure
on what each pea costs—his problem is to get enough for a serving
for the family.

LESSON FOR BUREAUCRATS
WHEN THE STARVING FRENCH
people demanded bread of their king, he told them to eat cake, and
in the end the king lost his head.
When the hungry workers doing the heavy jobs of war production demand more meat, the theoretical bureaucrats at Washington tell them to eat chicken. The bureaucrats
should read the story of Louis XVI
of France.

THERE IS SOME WRATH a soft
answer will not appease.

GAS-LESS AUTO RACE
An automobile race was staged in Brazil recently which should interest
gas-less Americans. Thirty-two cars
took part, and not one of them used
a drop of gasoline.
Each car was equipped with a charcoal burning apparatus known as
"gasogene," producing a charcoal gas whose combustion takes the place of the combustion of gasoline
in the ordinary automobile engine.
These devices have been so successful in Brazil that they are being produced at the rate of 40 a day, selling for about $200 each. Some of the units are capable of generating
a thousand horsepower, and are used even on the inter-city buses
between Santos and Sao Paulo.
Brazil has practically no petroleum resources of her own.

TANKERS DELIVER PLANES
Everybody knows that bombers
have long been delivered to England under their own power. But the big problem has been to deliver fighter
planes, which have had to be taken apart, crated, then reassembled on the other side.
Now, however, a new system has been devised whereby U. S. tankers are carrying fighters on deck—20 to each tanker—and setting them down
a few days later in England.
The War Shipping Administration
is keeping the army "cleaned out
of fighters" by this method of delivery, and is rapidly building up
the strength of the Eighth Air
Forces command which is battering
Germany.

Note: PT boats are also being delivered to England on the decks
of tankers.

NO GERMAN SAUSAGE
The diplomats' grapevine reports
that the German food supply is running low. A new cut has been made in the meat ration. This, coming at a time when the greatest muscle
must be exerted in defense of the Vaterland, is expected to be a severe blow to German morale.

The basic ration of meat for normal uses was 400 grams at this time last year. But now the ration has been cut to 250 grams—which is about half a pound per week, including fat and bone. An effort is being made to compensate this reduction
by the substitution of cheese and groats (hulled and crushed oats and wheat). During the winter, however, it was reduced to 300 grams. In the spring the cut was partially restored, when the ration was moved up to 350 grams, recognizing the necessity of more nourishment with the coming of the season of greater
military activity.

ARMY AND GOLD MINING
American soldiers who spent dreary winters tracking through the Arctic forest, to build the Alcan
highway to Alaska, frequently saw
the sparkle of gold in the stream
beds, and wanted to stake out claims for peacetime development. They were not allowed to do so.

Now, however, civilian construction crews are coming along the same trail, and are staking out claims for the gold which U. S. soldiers could not touch.
Boys from almost every state
were sent to Alaska on that pioneering job—cutting a road through tall timber where none but Indians had passed before. They worked from Dawson Creek, in Alberta, to Fairbanks, Alaska, but the place where they saw the gleaming gold was in the Yukon, near Whitehorse.

At first, there was little time to think about private projects, for one battalion was racing against another to complete its 20-mile stretch of highway. But when a lull came in the work, the men asked permission to try their luck at panning
gold. The officers, however, ruled this out.

Another season has rolled around,
and things have changed. The pioneer road is being replaced by a permanent highway, built by big construction companies—Elliott Construction Co., and Beckett, Price and Callahan.

These companies have mining engineers attached to the construction
gangs, and they are not bound by military discipline.

Note: Finally the army has modified its regulations to permit a little amateur gold panning by soldiers in Alaska, for recreational purposes.
This activity will be in the same class with fishing, to give the soldiers sport in their spare time.

Vegetable Canning Guide

Non-Acid Vegetables

Are you putting up many greens
and vegetables from your Victory
garden this year? In other years,
the first question we asked after
that, was, do you have a pressure cooker?

You see, a pressure cooker is the safest, most desirable method of putting up vegetables which are non-acid. The reason: In most soil there is a deadly germ
called Botulism
which attaches itself to vegetables
in the non-acid class, to which most of them belong. Mr. Botulism is hard to detect except by extreme heat—which the pressure cooker
can give as most vegetables are processed at an above-boiling point,
240 degrees Fahrenheit.

Let me go on record as saying
use the pressure cooker if you possibly can. Chances are you're being able to buy one are slim, but perhaps there's a neighbor or friend or a local canning center which will give you the means of having one.
If it's absolutely impossible to obtain a pressure cooker, do non-acid
vegetables by the boiling water bath. It takes much longer to process the vegetables, but don't skimp
a minute of it, if you would be successful.

Processing Foods
Processing times have been carefully tested and cannot be shortened. Follow them to the letter to get results. Processing may be done in various ways, and it is important to select the one best suited to the food you are putting up.
A pressure cooker gives you the greatest degree of safety in canning
non-acid vegetables for it permits
the greatest degree of heat to penetrate the jar and thus destroy botulism. To use the pressure cooker, prepare the product, pre-
cook it and pack carefully in sterilized jars. Adjust cap. Prepare pressure cooker by pouring hot water into the bottom of the cooker
up to the level of the rack. Place filled jars on rack, allowing for sufficient circulation of water around them. Be sure jars do not touch.

Place pot on pressure cooker and clamp on tightly. Leave pot cook open 7-10 minutes to exhaust all steam in cooker, otherwise you will not get correct pressure. After all steam is exhausted, close pet-cock
and let pressure build to desired degree, then turn down heat, and maintain pressure exactly or liquid
will be drained from jars if pressure
is allowed to fluctuate.

When processing time is up, remove cooker from heat, let pressure
reach zero, then remove lid, so
steam does not hit you when cooker
is opened. Set jars on several thickness of cloth or paper, and let cool,
without inverting jars.

Hot Water Bath.
A large, deep vessel with a tight-fitting cover is best for making this type of canner. Use a big kettle,
a lard can, a deep well cooker with galvanized wire or rack at the bottom of it to hold the jars one-half inch from the bottom of the canner.

Before putting jars in canner, have water boiling briskly. If the jars
lower the temperature and it stops
boiling when they're submerged, do not process.

Lynn Says:
What to Do: Make rationing
work by using fresh fruits and vegetables for canned whenever possible. To save money, use seasonal produce generously.

In main dishes that call for to-matos or tomato juice, use fresh tomatoes when in season, put up
home canned foods, or substitute
brown gravy.
Save and store excess water
from vegetables in a covered container and use for flavoring soups,
stews and gravies.
Omit chili sauce and catsup in recipes unless you have the home-canned variety. Chopped green pepper and relishes add pep to salads and sandwich fillings without taking ration points.

Cooked dressings or sour cream
dressings will help save your using too much oil for salad dressings.

Save every ounce of extra fat
from meat. Use it for baking or frying, or give it to the butcher.

not count processing time until the
water boils.
It's especially important to make certain there's plenty of water in the boiling water bath. There should be enough to come two inches above
the jars. If water boils out during processing, add some boiling water
from a teakettle on the range.

Use the table given at the head of this column for guiding you in pre-
cooking and processing vegetables.
The ideal way of proceeding with
your canning is as follows:

First, before you even start canning, get jars ready by washing
them in hot soapy
suds and scalding
them. Check for cracks, chips and
sharp edges on
jars, to see that they are perfect.
Prepare jars
ahead of time
and invert them
on several thick-
nesses of clean towel near your stove so that you have them on hand
when canning.

Prepare vegetables by washing thoroughly and then cutting or preparing as for table. Precook, according to table. Pack in sterile jars and process for required time.
Set jars to cool, after processing
on several thicknesses of towel or newspaper, away from drafts. Let cool for 24 hours. If using a self-sealing lid with screw band, remove screw band and use it over again. Test the jars by tapping gently on lid. If you get a high ringing note, the jar is sealed and may be stored.

Reasons for Spoilage.
Spoilage reasons are many and may be traced to any part of the canning procedure. Sometimes it is easier to avoid failures if you know
what causes certain types of spoil-
age.

If fruit or vegetables are over-
ripe, sterilization is difficult as bacteria may have developed to a degree which it
is not possible to eradicate. Use only produce in prime
condition as you
get out of your
jars what you put
in them.

Washing all
vegetables and fruits before working will get rid of bacteria which cling to the soil.

Unclean jars can work havoc with your canning effort. Best remedy
for this is washing jars thoroughly
in clean soapy suds and then scald-ing, and laying the jars inverted on several thicknesses of clean towel
until ready to use. Lids should also be sterilized.

Sealing.
Seal the cap according to the principle on which it was made. A self-sealing cap seals by vacuum created by the cooling of the contents of the jar, and the screw band does not need tightening after processing.
Zinc caps and rubber bands should be tightened.

Can for Health.
Fruits and vegetables are known to be a rich source of health-giving vitamins and minerals. Vitamin A,
for example, so extremely essential
to children and adults alike, is found in large quantities of certain fruits and vegetables. Vitamin A promotes growth; it helps to prevent eye diseases; it helps prevent night blindness; it aids in the normal functioning of glands; it increases the life span. From experimental studies it appears that if a child, during the years from 3 to 10 is fed very large amounts of vitamin A, he will be less susceptible to the usual children's diseases. A growing child requires 3,000 International Units of vitamin A daily; an adult 6,000 to 8,000 daily.

BIBLE TEACHINGS ON THE COST OF DRINKING

LESSON TEXT—Deuteronomy 21:18-21;
Proverbs 23:20, 21; 1 Corinthians 6:9-11.
GOLDEN TEXT—Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God?—1 Corinthians 6:9.

Billions of dollars—how many we cannot say—make up the annual cost of liquor to America in dollars and cents. Terrifying as it is, that stupendous waste is but a drop in the bucket compared with the moral and spiritual degradation, the sorrow and
suffering, the poverty and distress,
which must be added into our liquor
bill.

For it is not only a matter of dollars, but of blood and tears, or destroyed usefulness, lost virtue,
wrecked homes, and so on and on.
We go right on paying the bill, allowing ourselves to be misled
by clever propaganda, and skillfully manipulated statistics—or it may be our sheer indifference. When will America awaken!

Our lesson faces us with the cost of this despicable traffic in the life
of the individual to the social order,
and in the light of eternity.

I. The Personal Cost (Deut. 21: 18-21).

Liquor destroys individuals relentantly, rapidly, and effectively. Have we forgotten that fact?

The passage in Deuteronomy presents a drastic remedy for a dreadful situation. Drink and gluttony were recognized as the deadly instrument which would bring a boy
to the place where he was incorrigible. Stubborn, rebellious, and disobedient, his parents were to bring him to the elders for a final judgment.

If one thinks the penalty too harsh,
he must remember that it was established in the early days of Israel
when it was necessary for God to use such drastic remedies to stamp out iniquity.

It must be remembered that in ancient Greece weak children were left out to die, and in Rome a father could at will put to death even a grown up son.
The point of this scripture for us
is that a life of debauchery (and it can start with just a glass of wine)
leads to the ultimate destruction of life. It is far too high a cost to pay for a sinful indulgence.

II. The Social Cost (Prov. 23: 20, 21).

Drunkness and gluttony lead to poverty and rags. The intemperate man cannot keep up with the high cost of supplying his growing appetite. Even as he tries to satisfy his insatiable demand, it also renders
him unfit to earn a living.
So the vicious circle works its way around, and stops not until the drunkard totters off in his rags, unless perchance some loved one or friend takes care of him.

Do we not all recall how families
in our own communities have been ruined and become charges upon the county or charitable organizations
because of the destruction wrought
by a father who was a winebibber.

Not only does it bring poverty
upon families, but it reduces able
and gifted men to shambling wrecks
and thus deprives society of the benefit of their lives and service.

A present-day illustration is the unsolved problem of absenteeism for days after pay day in our essential industries. Again we say the cost is altogether too high; let us get rid
of this monster before it destroys us!

III. The Eternal Cost (1 Cor. 6: 9-11).

Money lost is serious. Life lost is far more serious. But the saddest
cost of all is the eternal damnation
of the drinker's soul.

We quote from Dr. Horace Martin
these stirring and meaningful words:
"It is my calm judgment that any man who names the name of Christ
should take an attitude of horror and disgust at the liquor traffic and the use of liquor as a beverage. There are at least three places in the New Testament where the Bible says that no drunkard shall inherit the kingdom of God."

"If any man takes that statement seriously he must think twice before he refers to the use of liquor in a joking manner, or in any way condones the use of alcohol as a beverage" (Lesson Commentary).

Drunkness is a foul and sinful
thing, classed by the apostle Paul with the lowest of human vices. Review the list as it is given in verses 9 and 10 (and by the way notice the other sins mentioned there), and
place drunkness in its proper classification.

Call it what it really is—sin, and then call on the One who can save from sin. You will then be washed from your sin, sanctified, and justified in the name of the Lord Jesus (v. 11). In Christ there is hope for the drunkard. A spiritual revival is the real answer to the liquor problem. Let us seek to promote it even as we at the same time give ourselves to an intelligent and constructive battle against this destructive
force in the life of our nation.

It's a Family Affair

A youngster asked his father
how wars began.

"Well," said his father, "suppose America quarreled with England and—"

"But," interrupted the mother,
"America must never quarrel with England."

"I know," he answered, "but I am only taking a hypothetical instance."

"You are misleading the child,"

said the mother.

"No, I am not!" he shouted.

"Never mind, dad," said the boy, "I think I know how wars

begin."

Readers' Opinions

Letters for this column should be brief and to the point. Lengthy articles may be cut down at the discretion of the editor. Writers must sign their own names for the information of the editor, but letters will be published over pen names when so desired and requested by the writers.

A prize of six months' subscription is being given for the best letter each week, limited to 200 words or less. Prize letter this week is the first one printed below.

"HELP THE SOLDIERS"

Editor Courier: Ever, Ky., July 19
Imagine you being a soldier like so many boys are. Would you want to get letters from home and friends often? I think you would. Why not let's all get interested in writing all the boys that are serving Uncle Sam, or at least the ones we know well. Let's help the soldiers every way we can. We not only can help them by writing to them; we can help them by buying war bonds and stamps. As you know, every cent you lend to Uncle Sam helps buy bullets and ammunition for the boys who are in battle. MARY A. JENKINS

"THE BEST GIFT"

Grassy Creek, Ky., July 19
Editor Courier:
You will find enclosed $1 which I am sending for a six months' subscription to your paper to be sent to my father, Lyle Hanes, Stacy Fork, Ky. I think the Courier is the best gift for the money I could give anyone. I certainly couldn't do without it myself. Father always liked the Courier and its editor. An appreciative reader, MRS. PEARL WHEELER

"FIGHTINGEST MEN"

Camp Forrest, Tenn., July 12
Editor Courier:
I was reading a letter sent to your paper by an old pal of mine, James Beuchler. He is right about the infantry boys. They do the dirty work and get the least amount of credit. The air force, the tank corps, the field artillery, and all have their jobs to do, but give me the infantry for a bunch of the fightingest men that ever faced the enemy. I am in the rangers. We work in about the same manner as the infantry, only a little tougher, going into the face of the enemy with bayonets. Giggling those rats out of their holes takes plenty of guts, and the boys in the rangers and the infantry are just the ones that can do it. Keep the good old Courier coming my way. Hello, James.

PVT. DELBERT FERGUSON.

TAKES TIME TO READ IT

R. 1, Piketon, O., July 14
Editor Courier:
Enclosed you will find $3 for your paper one year.

Very busy times with me now, being a farmer. I don't have time to listen to the radio, but when your paper comes in I take time to read it, about every word in it, as Morgan county was where I was raised, at Matthews, on Rockhouse creek.

When your paper comes I look all thru the news. I find once in a while of my old schoolmates and friends where they have been visiting one another.

I was a fox hunter when I lived there, and I can almost hear my hounds run yet, after 30 years. I ran with Bill Perry and some with Dr. Lyle Carter. I came thru West Liberty two years ago and it looked very strange to me.

Well, Mr. Editor, give me a little boost in your paper, that my oldtime friends will know I am still in the land. I figure that . . . was the one that ordered you to send me the Courier, and I was so glad to get it. SHERMAN HAMMOND

INFORMATION TO VOTERS

Morgan county has been redistricted and there are some changes in the boundaries of the precincts, so I will set them out as they were laid out by the commissioners appointed for this purpose.

Ward No. 1, West Liberty, Ky. Beginning with the mouth of Long branch and running up Long branch to Byron Carter's place; thence running a straight line to the top of the hill or ridge at Park Hill; thence with the top of the hill and its meanders crossing the town hill to the low gap above George Spurlock's; thence down the drain and straight to the Licking river and back with the Licking river, so as to take all the voters in the town of West Liberty, Ky.

Ward or Precinct No. 2, Outlying territory about West Liberty, Ky., just outside of the city limits, and bounded as follows: Beginning at the county road on top of Reed hill above Joe Carpenter's and running with the top of the hills and ridges to include the Milt Reed farm and Lee May farm, following the hills back to George Spurlock's and follow ridge so as to include all the Long branch, and the ridge so as to include all Spaw Creek, and all the voters up to War Creek, all Jones Creek crossing the river and following the ridge so as to include the Dr. Sparks farm as to include the ridge the beginning corner. Voting place to be at a building just outside boundary of West Liberty, Ky., what is known as the Oscar Cantrill place.

Precinct No. 3, Beginning at the Licking river at B. F. Fairchild's place, thence running down Licking river to one half mile below the mouth of Caney creek; thence with the top of the ridge between Lucky Sugar Camp branch, that is following the top of the McClannahan hill and ridges so as to take all the voters on the Lick fork to the top of the hill between North fork and Lick Fork, and following the dividing ridge so as to take all the voters on Mordica, and to take the voters on Indian Creek to State highway and back with the state highway to the top of the ridge between Long branch and Elk fork, and follow the ridge back to the top of the hill at Bruce Fairchild's farm and back with Bruce Fairchild's farm to the beginning at Licking river. Vote at Lower Lickfork Schoolhouse.

Precinct No. 4, Beginning on the Licking river about 1/2 mile below the mouth of Caney creek and one mile below the mouth of Elk fork; thence running with the Licking river, and up the Licking river so as to include Henry Lewis' farm; thence with the top of the ridges and boundary of Precinct No. 2 to the top of the Reed hill; thence following the top of the ridge so as to include Jim Smiley's or Bill Short's farm and Cecil farm, and to go down from the top of the ridge to include the Frank Lewis farm; thence crossing Big Caney creek and follow the top of the ridges to include Little Caney creek, with Greaser fork, Panama fork, and Lick fork, to the top of the dividing ridge between Grassy creek and following the ridge so as to include Bascom Elam's farm and back with the ridge to the beginning on the Licking river. Voting place school house at Index, Ky.

Chapel No. 25 at Stamper No. 26 will be divided by State highway No. 40 or Garrett highway. All the voters down Grassy creek will vote at the school house at Chapel, and all the voters on the upper side will vote at a building near Joe or Leonard Stamper's store. This will change the boundary of both precincts as to the dividing line only.

Ezel and Murphy, Ezel will take all the voters to the county line west of Long branch, Bryant fork, Route No. 40, to Greasy creek, to Maytown; and Murphy will take all east of this including Murphyfork and Maytown. Ezel precinct will vote at Ezel, and Murphy will vote at Greasy schoolhouse.

Cox. That part of Toms branch that is located next to the Meniffee county line is changed to vote in Cox precinct. This includes the Goad ridge country.

There no doubt will be some minor changes to be made later so as to make the new setup better for some voters, but this can be done by a county court order 60 days before any primary or general election.

Where only minor changes other than the above, that do not change the outside boundary of the precincts generally.

This is published for the information of voters. Any registration will be taken care of on day of primary.

One look at the instrument panel and you feel the same way. It's hard to believe that ordinary mortals could ever master that maze of dials, buttons, levers and switches.

But young Americans are doing it with deadly efficiency. (Ask Adolf, Benito or Tojo.) And they don't learn their jobs just by reading a book. It takes intensive training and practical experience.

The electric power business is like that. You can't make kilowatt-hours with theories. You've got to learn how—by growing up in the business.

CLOSED A WHILE

A FEW Standard Oil Service Stations are "boarded up." Pumps are empty, drives vacant... the boys have gone to war.

Wherever such a scene of inaction may have replaced the busy corner of a short time ago, accept it as evidence that many men of this Company have changed their uniforms for a while.

Not far away you will find another Standard Oil Station—open, busy, trustworthy—worth going an extra distance to find. If not all Stations in your locality can overcome the "man-power" question, please understand that we strive to keep standards high—too high to permit indifferent operation.

Soon, we hope, conditions will favor and make possible old-time operation. Until then let the Station that is "closed for a while" be a signal to you that Standard Oil men are in the thick of the fight.

HENRY WARD

Democratic Candidate For

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

YOUR VOTE FOR WARD IS A VOTE FOR KENTUCKY'S PROGRESS

★ EXPERIENCED

Ward is the only Candidate with Legislative Experience. He has served as Representative continuously for the past 10 years and was elected Democratic Majority leader at the last session.

★ CAPABLE

Ward has authored, sponsored and voted for more constructive, progressive legislation for the benefit of Kentucky and its citizens than perhaps any other man in the history of the Commonwealth—including T.V.A. to provide cheaper electricity—R.E.A. to electrify Kentucky farms—better education for our children and better pay for teachers—enlightened Labor Laws—fair taxes and opportunities for Kentucky business—Free Toll Bridges—better roads and farm to market highways—airports—old age pensions—improved State Institutions—economy in Government. Ward's 10 years in the Legislature covers the period of the State's complete freedom from debt and the enactment of laws to prevent it going into debt again.

★ PROGRESSIVE

Governor Johnson speaking of Ward said, "I have never known a man to work harder or more loyally, ingeniously and effectively for the good of his State and its people than Henry Ward."

Reward a faithful public servant. Vote for Ward, the man with the record of faithful performance and accomplishments.

DEEP WATERS

THE STORY SO FAR: When Will McPhail leaves for Moose Bay, Robin Dale decides to follow him. On the way she meets Will's brother Angus, a dour Scot who hates women. He does not know that she is engaged to Will, and Robin realizes that she must not come between the two men. So instead of seeing Will, Robin stays on board when the White Queen docks. But Will, operating a crane, sees a girl on the deck. As he turns to look he loses his balance and is killed. Learning that Angus blames her, Robin goes to see him with a man named Jenkins, a fellow passenger on the White Queen. They talk to an ugly man, and Robin asks who he is.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER VI

"Pat Donohoe. He's McPhail's boatman," Jenkins said. "I suppose McPhail will be back for the funeral."

"Oh!" He meant Will's funeral! Will was dead, and they were going to bury him. She had not realized death till she heard that word. She was suddenly very tired. When she suggested returning to the hotel, Mr. Jenkins, after some good-natured protest, agreed.

Robin slept and walked and slept again. At noon she rang for coffee and toast. She wondered a little why Mr. Jenkins did not come to take her to see Mrs. Freely; but she was glad he did not. Slowly, during the long afternoon, she emerged from the protective numbness which had followed the first shock of Will's death, so that she could feel the keen ache of pain; and that night she did not sleep at all. The rain drove against her windows all night long, and when dawn came, there was no slackening in the storm. She stared at the sluicing panes, and thought, Will would be buried today, and she hated this raw wilderness town full of hard men, with mud underfoot and rain and gusty wind over all. When she dressed and went down, the clerk named Dave looked at her curiously.

"When will there be a boat for Rimouski or Quebec, or—anywhere?" she asked him.

He seemed surprised, and for some strange reason maliciously pleased. He said a cruise boat would touch here some time in the afternoon, bound for Quebec.

"Do you suppose I could get a cabin on her?"

"Yes, I know she's not full."

Afternoon? Will would be buried this afternoon. She could not go till then. "What time will she be here?"

"Can't tell yet," he said. "We'll get word later today." He hesitated. "Mr. Jenkins left a message for you. Said he'd be back tonight."

"Oh!" She had quite forgotten Mr. Jenkins. "Thanks."

After lunch a man spoke to her in the lobby. There was something about him remotely familiar. He made conversation in a courteous way, without offense; and he spoke at last, too casually, of Mr. Jenkins. She recognized him then as the man who had crossed the dock to look down at Mr. Jenkins' boat, when Mr. Jenkins stopped to go aboard her that first day. She asked suddenly:

"Why are you interested in Mr. Jenkins?"

"I?" His tone was too surprised. "You and he old friends, are you?"

A question to answer her question. Too many questions. She wondered with complete irrelevance, why Will had not met Angus when the White Queen docked. Why had Will stayed in the cab of the crane and let Angus drive away to shore?

Why were men afraid of Mr. Jenkins? What tickets? Who was it Mr. Jenkins allowed to come in? Where was Mr. Jenkins today? Too many questions. She asked:

"Don't you know any answers?"

Before he could reply, the clerk named Dave came to her. "They don't know when the funeral will be," he reported. "Mr. McPhail's brother hasn't come back yet. They're waiting for him."

She nodded thanks, and suddenly she was dreadfully afraid that something had happened to Angus. Fear choked her so that she could not speak. She fled the stairs to her room. Hours later the clerk knocked on her door. "Miss Dale, the funeral's passing right now."

She caught up hat and slicker and ran to the stairs and down. "The cemetery's right up on the hill," he told her. "They're just getting there." He pointed the way; and she went out into gusty wind and driving rain.

She saw Angus, his garments wet and torn, his old hat more battered than ever, his cheeks gaunt, his eyes red and sunken. He stood by the grave.

As she approached, his eyes lifted to meet hers. His eyes were bleak as winter. They made her cold. She said tremulously: "Mr. McPhail, I want to talk to you. I want to tell you..."

He interrupted her, in flat tones. She thought his voice was like that of a deaf man. "I've nothing to say to you, and I don't want to hear anything you can say."

She could not believe her ears. She protested softly: "But I just want you to know how sorry..."

He said curtly: "Be off!"

She cried in a hurt bewilderment: "But Mr. McPhail..."

"Then stay if you like! I'll go."

He turned on the word and strode away. Robin was suddenly angry. He needn't act so! She started after him, to tell him so. He walked so fast that, trying to overtake him, calling his name, she had to run; and she slipped and floundered in the mud.

She cried out to him, even then; but he did not turn. Pat Donohoe lifted her to her feet and with awkward hands scraped mud off her garments, and he said gently:

"Let him go, ma'am! Let the poor man go!"

Then he himself went after Angus, not seeking to overtake him, keeping ten paces behind.

When Robin came back to the hotel, her bewildered thoughts were more in order. She was no longer angry; but she was puzzled now. There had been more than indifference in Angus McPhail's eyes, and more than grief. There had been a cold and furious rage; and it was a specific rage at her! A dozen questions filled her mind.

She stripped off her soaked and muddy clothes, and she thought wearily that reasons did not matter. Clearly, she could do nothing to help him, to ease his hurt. She might as well go home. She changed into dry clothes, then went down to consult the clerk. He said the boat would dock at six or half past; would sail at nine. It was already after five. She asked:

"Can you get a car to take me down to her?"

"There aren't any taxis. Mr. Jenkins will take you, won't he? He'll be back any time now."

Mr. Jenkins was nothing; but if he knew she was leaving, he might annoy her with urgencies to stay. "Oh, no!" she said hurriedly. "I'd rather he didn't know I was going."

The clerk nodded as though approvingly. "Sorry, I thought you were a friend of his. I can drive you down, myself, after six o'clock. I'm off then for half an hour."

She thanked him. She arranged to leave her muddy garments to be cleaned and forwarded; then returned to her room to pack. At six she descended; at five minutes past, she and the clerk were in his car.

"Steamer's not in yet; but I have to be back at half past, and there's no one around to take you down later."

"I can wait on the pier," she assured him. "If Mr. Jenkins asks where I am, don't tell him, will you?"

"I didn't think you looked like a friend of his," he said. When they reached the end of the pier, the steamer was not yet in sight. They sat in the car till he had to leave. When she was left alone, Robin looked toward where Angus McPhail's motor cruiser and Mr. Jenkins' boat had been tied up two days ago. Mr. Jenkins' boat was gone; but McPhail's was there. She walked that way and saw that the cabin scuttle was open, so he must be aboard.

She decided to make one last attempt to talk to him; and—shaking a little at her own temerity—she descended the ladder and called his name into the cabin.

But no one answered. She was disappointed; but if he came before the cruise boat docked, she might still make him listen to her. She decided to wait for him; so she climbed up on the dock again and brought her bags to the head of the ladder that led down to his boat, where they would be under her eye.

A workman passed and said, "Hi, babe!" She wished she need not be so conspicuous. Then it began to rain again. It was silly to stand here and be soaked. She climbed down the ladder and took shelter in the cabin to wait for Angus there.

She heard an engine murmur and then bark more loudly as the reverse gear took hold. Another boat was mooring just off of this one. It must be Mr. Jenkins, returning; so she kept out of sight. Then she heard Mr. Jenkins' voice on the dock above her. He spoke French—which she did not understand—and someone answered him, and a moment later she heard feet coming down the ladder.

Mr. Jenkins must be coming aboard; and she did not wish to see him! She stepped into the stateroom and closed the door of it behind her. A moment later, she heard footsteps in the cabin, and two voices.

She stood in the narrow space between the bunks and the fore and aft bulkhead which divided the stateroom from the compartment where the engine was. She was afraid they would open the door and find her. Mr. McPhail must surely be here soon. She dared not show herself until he came; but she need not stand. She sat down cautiously on the lower bunk. The upper bunk was so near the lower that she could not sit upright without bumping her head, so she lay down. She was wide awake, listening to the voices, wondering what Mr. Jenkins and the other man were discussing so seriously.

She was very tired. She had not slept at all last night, very little the night before; and her eyes burned and ached. When she closed them, they were more comfortable; so she kept them closed, listening to the rapid-fire conversation in the cabin, wishing she could understand what they were saying. It began not to matter...

She was awakened by the opening of the cabin door, the sudden flood of light in her face. She rolled on her side, scrambling out of the bunk, scrambling to her feet, blinking and confused. The floor lifted and tilted under her. Silhouetted in the cabin door stood a man in a battered old hat. It was Angus McPhail's hat. The man was Angus McPhail.

But the engine was running! They were going somewhere! The boat pitched under her feet, and she almost fell, staggered, caught at his coat to save herself. She cried: "Heavens to Betsy! What happened? Where are we?"

He said in a harsh, grating tone: "Three hours out of Moose Bay toward Labrador!"

Three hours out of Moose Bay toward Labrador! The light was in Robin's eyes, blinding her. Angus McPhail was a dark silhouette in the doorway; and his dry tones were like the rustle of dead leaves in an icy wind. Three hours out of Moose Bay... She wrinkled her brows, peering into his shadowed countenance, trying to understand this incredible thing he said. She protested, in a half whisper, "Three hours! But didn't you know I was here?"

The boat was pitching and tossing. She clung to his coat to keep from falling down, till he freed himself, drew back. Then she stumbled into the cabin, sat down on one of the benches by the narrow table. Angus moved aside to let her pass; he stood above her, his legs spread, his head a little bowed; and when he did speak she said, still vague with sleep:

"Then you'll have to take me back, won't you? I'm sorry to make so much trouble."

He was so long in answering that she began to be fully awake. When he did speak, he said in a strange blurred voice: "You came aboard. I didn't ask you. You got yourself into this. Get yourself out!"

His lips were twisting strangely. She asked in a puzzled wonder: "Are you trying to frighten me?"

He echoed in a dry scorn, "Frighten you?" His husky, low tone was more alarming than a shout. She remembered, now fully awake, his violence at Will's grave. It had been more than the madness of grief. It had been, definitely, anger at her. She shivered under her head so that he might not see terror in her eyes; and she sat thus, with her face hidden, trying to guess some reason for his anger. It was possible that Will had told him about their love for one another; but even that could not wholly explain his rage now that Will was dead.

Before she could find words, he asked suddenly: "What did you want aboard here?"

She looked up at him. "Why—just to speak to you. Just to say—the words people do say to those who are grieving."

His voice rose a little, dry and harsh as rust. "Couldn't you speak your piece ashore? Why were you so sure you'd be welcome in my cabin? Why should you think I wanted you?" His fists were tight at his sides. "Curse you, if it's men you're after, go forward in the fo'c's'le! Maybe Romeo and Pat will let you share their quarters. I won't."

His very extravagance steadied her. She looked at him in quiet appraisal. It was not fair to treat what he said as though it were said by a sane man. She asked: "Have you eaten anything these three days? Have you slept at all?"

"Hah! There's a woman for you! Feed the brute. Put him to bed. He'll be in better humor in the morning."

"Please..."

"If you expect me to take you back to Moose Bay—you're due to be disappointed."

"Did you know I was aboard before you left there?"

He said, almost sullenly: "No. Not till half an hour ago."

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Just as appendicitis was formerly the main subject for discussion when health or medicine was mentioned, now the main subject appears to be blood pressure—that is, high blood pressure. In fact, some physicians, in their natural desire to prevent heart or brain strokes in their patients, often take blood-pressure readings every time the patient with high blood pressure consults them. The patient usually asks the physician as to his blood pressure each time it is taken and if it is a few points higher than at the previous visit he begins to worry about it.

Now it so happens that a blood pressure a few points above or below that of the previous visit does not mean any real change in the condition of the blood vessels, because food, emotional disturbances and other factors enter into the condition of the blood pressure.

In the Boston number, Medical Clinics of North America, Dr. Norman H. Boyer in an article on the treatment of high blood pressure (hypertension) says: "Those who concern themselves chiefly with blood-pressure readings are doomed to frequent disappointment. While reduction of blood pressure is desirable and in some cases can be accomplished, it can be said that there is available today no specific single remedy for the reduction of high blood pressure."

Now this statement does not mean that these patients with high blood pressure cannot be helped, as relief of symptoms and postponement of the dire results of high blood pressure brain stroke and heart stroke and congestion of the kidneys can often be accomplished. And because so much can be done for these patients, Dr. Boyer states that undue emphasis should not be placed on blood-pressure readings.

How should high blood pressure be treated?

By trying to find the cause and treating the patient from the standpoint of the cause. The causes of high blood pressure are disturbances in the brain, gland system, kidneys and blood itself.

The treatment is therefore directed toward the correction of abnormal conditions in so far as this is possible—plenty of rest, moderation in eating, avoiding overweight, removal of infections, use of quieting drugs and kidney extracts and surgery (nerve cutting) in extreme cases.

Saliva Tests Check Tooth Decay

Most interesting research work on finding out how badly teeth are decayed is reported in the Journal of the American Dental Association by Dr. Marshall L. Snyder of the Hygienic Laboratory, University of Michigan. A group of children were studied for a little more than two years in an attempt to find out if the number of organisms that cause tooth decay present in the mouth (saliva) were in proportion to the amount of decay present in the teeth.

Children of the Michigan Elementary school were selected for this research work because the condition of their teeth is studied during the school year by an examination of the teeth fall and spring, together with X-rays and measurements of the teeth and jaws. This made it easy for research workers to compare the findings of the examination of the teeth with the number of the special organisms present in saliva. Only those children that had received from four to seven examinations and tests during the two years were included in the report.

How closely did the number of organisms and the amount of decay present agree with one another?

"The study proved to be 90 per cent accurate when clinical examinations of the children's teeth were checked against the color changes (showing number of organisms present) which occurred in the laboratory tests. The number of organisms present was obtained by having the children chew on wax tablets. Then the specimens of the saliva were tested in the laboratory after definite periods of time.

If no color change in the substance in which organisms grow within 72 hours, no decay present. If some color change in 48 hours, some decay of teeth is present. If considerable color change in 24 hours, there was much decay."

Cautions for Home Canners

Housewives doing home canning with wartime jar caps are cautioned to follow implicitly the instructions of the cap manufacturers if they wish to avoid unhappy experiences and waste in their patriotic effort to conserve. Spoilage of food and breakage of jars is certain to result, if instructions are not followed to the letter.

Proper methods and careful canning will insure excellent results, more important in the present food situation than at any other time.

The Glass-Top Seal Fruit Jar Cap, a wartime product developed to conserve metal, requires careful use, according to the home service departments of fruit jar manufacturers. This cap consists of a metal band, glass lid and rubber ring. With these the lid is placed on the jar, making up its component parts, the cap must be used according to important but easily followed instructions. First of all, the cap is not recommended for, and must not be used in, oven canning.

If the food is processed (cooked in a jar), one inch of space must be left in the top of the jar when filled, in order to allow room for expansion. If an open kettle is used a half-inch of space must be left in the top of the jar.

The next step is to place the rubber around the projection on the bottom side of the lid, and the lid must then be placed so that the rubber lies between it and the top edge of the jar. All jars on which top-seal closures, either glass or metal, are used must have smooth-top edges.

The bands are then applied tightly and immediately loosened slightly about one-quarter of a turn. Bands must fit loosely during the processing or cooking. If an open kettle is used, the bands are to be screwed tight as soon as the jar is filled. After the processing is completed the bands are screwed tight to complete the seal. The bands may be removed twelve hours after the canning operation. At no time should the filled jars be turned up-side-down.

The housewife who takes no chances on variance from any one of these simple but important steps is assured of success and the enjoyment of the delicious flavor of home canned foods this winter.—Adv.

Australian Aborigines

Although the white colonization of Australia began in 1788, the majority of its aborigines still do not know how to cultivate land, make clothes or build a shelter other than a windbreak, says Collier's.

These people have always been looked upon as little more than animals. In fact, up to 40 years ago, a settler merely required a permit to "shoot, poison or otherwise kill" them at will.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

At a Navy yard, 3000 workers travel daily 60 to 85 miles round trip by automobile—a good reason why war workers must have tires.

Tire users now restricted because of the rubber shortage will have to leave the road traveling conditions open to them in post-war days if State and Federal highway plans materialize. Already twelve States have approved building express highways of tomorrow when peace comes. Seven others are considering such plans.

A truck tire that is overloaded 50 per cent will only deliver 44.5 per cent of its mileage expectancy.

Cleopatra Was Pioneer In Painting Fingernails

The flapper of not-so-many years back didn't start the vogue for painted fingernails. The real pioneer in that field was Cleopatra, Aspasia, girl friend of Pericles, also tinted her nails. As a matter of fact, a husband 2,300 years ago "raised Ned" with his wife because she used cosmetics so extravagantly.

Whoever it is that gets credit for scolding girls for powdering their noses in public, is just an interloper. Ovid said many centuries ago: "A statue is never shown until it is finished."

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO HOME CANNERS

The Glass Top Seal Fruit Jar Cap for Home Canning was developed as a Wartime product to conserve metal. It consists of a Metal Band, Glass Lid and Rubber Ring.

Because of the difference in the nature of these three materials this Cap must be used differently from any other fruit jar cap. If used properly it will give excellent results. If not used properly, results will be bad, including failure to seal and breakage of jars. Following are simple instructions for use of the Glass Top Seal Cap and must be followed carefully.

1. Do NOT use in Oven Canning.
2. If processing, (cooking in jar), leave 1 inch space in top of jar. If using open kettle, leave ½ inch space in top of jar.
3. Fit rubber around projection on bottom side of lid.
4. Place lid so rubber lies between lid and top edge of jar.
5. Turn bands tight, then loosen slightly (about ¼ turn). Bands must fit loosely during processing (cooking). This is important and must be done to insure best results. If using Open Kettle, screw bands tight as soon as jar is filled.
6. After processing, screw bands tight to complete seal. Remove bands 12 hours after canning.

DO NOT TURN FILLED JARS UPSIDE DOWN
